In 1871, nineteen men, women, and children, voyaging on the Arctic explorer USS Polaris found themselves cast adrift on an ice floe as their ship began to founder. Based on one of the most remarkable events in polar history, Afterlands tells the haunting story of this small society of castaways -- a white and a black American, five Germans, a Dane, a Swede, an Englishman, and two Inuit families -- and the harrowing six months they spend marooned in the Arctic, struggling to survive both the harsh elements and one another. As the group splinters into factions along ethnic and national lines, rivalries -- complicated by sexual desire, unrequited love, extreme hunger, and suspicion -- begin to turn violent.

Santiago is well educated and had intended to be a priest. But a desire for travel . . . prompted him to become a shepherd instead. He's contented. But then twice he dreams about hidden treasure, and a seer tells him to follow the dream's instructions: go to Egypt to the pyramids, where he will find a treasure. . . . Santiago makes it to the pyramids and there learns where his fortune is actually to be found. (Aiming for a mid-2017 start date on production.)

The Alienist is a psychological thriller set in the Gilded Age of New York City in 1896, a city of vast wealth, extreme poverty and technological innovation. When a series of haunting, gruesome murders of boy prostitutes grips the city, newly appointed police commissioner Theodore Roosevelt calls upon criminal psychologist (aka alienist) Dr. Laszlo Kreizler and newspaper reporter John Moore to conduct the investigation in secret. They are aided by a makeshift crew of singular characters, among them the intrepid Sara Howard, a young secretary on Roosevelt's staff who is determined to become the first female police detective in New York City. Using the emerging disciplines of psychology and early forensic investigation techniques, this band of social outsiders tracks down one of New York City's first serial killers.

Set in the 26th century, the story takes place 300 years after a societal collapse caused by a major war. But in that society, it's a technological dark age following a pinnacle of achievement far, far beyond where we are right now. It's a post-apocalyptic world from a very high level with cyborg technology as just a way of life. People are augmented a lot as workers and so on, so being a cyborg is not unusual. The main character is a cyborg. She has an organic human brain, and she looks like she's about fourteen years old. She has a completely artificial body and she's lost her memory - she's found in a wreckage and she's reconstituted by a cyber-surgeon who becomes her surrogate father. When he takes his only son Troy east for a tour of colleges, Brad Soares (Stiller), once himself a golden boy at his own university, becomes obsessed with the roads not taken in his life, and is constantly tormented by self-abasing fantasies of what might have been. Increasingly disgruntled by his own perceived shortcomings and failures, especially in contrast to his former Tufts classmates, who have all gone on to fame and fortune, Brad embarks on his own tour -- an agonizing, comical but ultimately redemptive journey to self-awareness. In the quiet and struggling town of Laurens, South Carolina circa 1996, racial tension bubbles under the surface - the status quo. When a group of Klansmen open the "Redneck Shop", a public tribute to the KKK in the middle of town square, Reverend David Kennedy is determined to unite the black community and put a stop to the outward display of hatred. Michael Burden (Hedlund), raised by the Klan and entrusted as the owner of the shop, is beginning to question everything he's ever stood for thanks to the love of a woman and the grace shown to him by Reverend Kennedy. Walking away from the Klan is easy, but surviving their wrath and putting aside his prejudice proves to be the hardest thing Burden has ever tried to do. (October 10 - November 15)

Follows a British High Court judge named Fiona Maye who must make judgments on a plethora of seemingly hopeless and unpleasant cases. She is so involved with the cases that she hears that it often strains her marriage. But one particular case is of particular difficulty — that of a 17 year-old boy who is suffering from leukemia and does not want to be forced to have possible live-saving blood transfusions because it goes against his religion. The case causes internal turmoil for the wise and compassionate judge who must choose between the bright boy's right to choose and that of the giving him the possibility of a future.

Based on the true story of the race between Thomas Edison (Cumberbatch) and George Westinghouse (Shannon) to develop a practical system of electricity and sell their respective inventions to the country and the world. The film will follow the events known as the "War of Currents," which took place in the late 1880's between Edison, who backed his direct current for electrical distribution, and Westinghouse who promoted alternating current. The rivalry got so intense that Edison launched a smear campaign against Westinghouse in an attempt to highlight the safety issues with alternating current. Edison lobbied against AC in state legislatures, spread disinformation on "fatal AC accidents," and even went so far as to publicly execute animals through electrocution. Edison's efforts were naught however, as alternating current prevailed as the superior and cost-effective system, yet his demonstrations led to the invention of the electric chair and his direct current is still used in nearly all modern electronic devices today.

Nicole Barrow is the survivor of a train derailment that caused her to lose her memory. At present she knows she has a doting husband who is primed to run for Attorney General. She is a Geography Professor at the local prestigious university and her love for cartography and old maps is something that she did not lose in the crash. After months of recovering, her perfect life seems to be getting back on track, but suddenly she is approached and even attacked by strange men who claim that she's reached out to them on a hookup site for sexual fantasies. She then discovers a series of social media pages that claim to be her. She thinks she's been catfished but can she prove it or was this really just her former self? Nicole's regular visits with a hypnotherapist reveal disturbing flashes of a raven and a mysterious man who has been buried alive. As she scrambles to put the pieces of her mind back together, the beautiful Terra Incognita map display in Boston leads her to recall a man she knows she's loved but can't quite place. Meanwhile, a new deck and a security camera reveal hard evidence that Nicole's husband might be hiding the truth of her past. Nicole is on a hunt to track the mystery of her former self and find the man she truly loves before all of the clues are buried by her husband...forever. (October 3 - 21)

McGregor will play the two central characters brothers Emmitt and Ray. Emmitt Stussy is the Parking Lot King of Minnesota. A handsome, self-made, real estate mogul and family man, Emmitt sees himself as an American success story. His slightly younger brother, Ray Stussy, on the other hand is more of a cautionary tale. Balding, pot-bellied, Ray is the kind of guy who peaked in high school. Now a parole officer, Ray has a huge chip on his shoulder about the hand he's been dealt, and he blames his brother, Emmitt, for his misfortunes. Winstead will play Nikki Swango, a crafty and alluring recent parolee with a passion for competitive bridge playing. Nikki is a woman with a plan, focused on always being at least one move ahead of her opponents. (November 30 - March 15)

When Gloria, a doting housewife and mother in her mid-60s finds, finds out Peter, her police inspector husband, has been cheating on her for 9 years at his retirement party, she is devastated. Seeking solace with her eccentric sister Janice, down in London's bohemian Camden, Gloria isn't fond of her sister's carpe diem approach to life, having several lovers and dancing with a community outreach program at Sadler's Wells called The Company of Elders. However, after hitting rock bottom, Gloria is reluctantly convinced by Janice to enroll with the dance troupe, where she meets Charlie, a fun loving, cheeky East End old boy. After overcoming their initial animosity, Gloria and Charlie discover a friendship. Whilst Gloria finds the intimacy of dance challenging, Charlie is patient and gently encourages her. Charlie's patience pays off and Gloria finds herself letting go of her inhibitions, inspired and free of the restrictions that came with her life before. Gloria begins to embrace her emerging new identity, dressing differently and embracing new experiences. She manages to overcome her fear of performing a dance routine in public with the company. Gloria and Charlie discover that they have more in common than just finding themselves alone in their sixties. They share stories. Charlie reveals he is a widow of three years and once served fifteen years in prison for armed robbery in his twenties but went straight when he was released and became a successful market stall trader. Its not long before the two of them are falling for one another. But after tragedy strikes, Gloria finds herself vulnerable and her husband, Peter, is back on the scene begging for forgiveness, telling her that he's made a horrible mistake. Gloria is forced to make a decision between her past life with Peter and her new one with Charlie.

The dramatic account of a small band of Special Forces soldiers who secretly entered Afghanistan following 9/11 and rode to war on horses against the Taliban. Outnumbered forty to one, they pursued the enemy across mountainous terrain and, after a series of intense battles, captured the city of Mazar-i-Sharif, which was strategically essential if they were to defeat the Taliban. The bone-weary American soldiers were welcomed as liberators, and overjoyed Afghans thronged the streets. Then the action took a wholly unexpected turn. During a surrender of six hundred Taliban troops, the Horse Soldiers were ambushed. Dangerously outnumbered, they fought for their lives in the city's immense fortress, Qala-i-Janghi, or the House of War. At risk were the military gains of the entire campaign: if the soldiers perished or were captured, the effort to defeat the Taliban might be doomed.

When struggling artist Ciaran, stumbles upon a duffel bag filled with money, he's faced with some tough decisions. His two friends have their own ideas of what should be done, but nobody seems to be on the same page. Maybe it would be easier if people in their apartment complex weren't being killed off one by one. Perhaps it would help if Ciaran didn't steal the money from gangsters on the run, or if two detectives weren't knocking on their doors, trying to get to the bottom of it. In this killer complex, nobody seems to be safe; that's one thing everyone seems to at least, agree with.

About the nature of genius, the cost of ambition, and the battle to electrify America. New York, 1888. The miracle of electric light is in its infancy. Thomas Edison has won the race to the patent office and is suing his only remaining rival, George Westinghouse, for the unheard of sum of one billion dollars. To defend himself, Westinghouse makes a surprising choice in his attorney: He hires an untested twenty-six-year-old fresh out of Columbia Law School named Paul Cravath (Redmayne). The task facing Cravath is beyond daunting. Edison proves to be a formidable, wily, and dangerous opponent. Yet this young, unknown attorney shares with his famous opponent a compulsion to win at all costs. How will he do it? As he takes greater and greater risks, he'll find that everyone in his path is playing their own game, and no one is quite who they seem." Woven into the tale are Nikola Tesla, Alexander Graham Bell, Stanford White and other technological titans of the late 19th century.

In the aftermath of the Civil War, the United States Army was left to fight another battle - a conflict against the Native American population that white civilization decided had overstayed their welcome. Though some at Fort Thayer feel that peaceful relocation remains the best approach, Colonel "Terrible" Bill Lancaster has plans to wipe the Comanches off the face of the earth entirely. When Lancaster captures and holds the wife of a Comanche chief, his new Executive Officer, Major Elroy McQueen struggles to determine how best to handle the bloodthirsty Colonel.

Upon arriving at the Tokatlian Hotel in Istanbul, private detective Hercule Poirot (Branagh) receives a telegram prompting him to cancel his arrangements and return to London. He instructs the concierge to book a first-class compartment on the Orient Express leaving that night. After boarding, Poirot is approached by Mr. Ratchett, a malevolent American he initially saw at the Tokatlian. Ratchett believes his life is being threatened and attempts to hire Poirot but, due to his distaste, Poirot refuses. "I do not like your face, Mr. Ratchett," he says. On the second night of the journey, the train is stopped by a snowdrift near Vinkovci. Several events disturb Poirot's sleep, including a cry emanating from Ratchett's compartment. The next morning, Mr. Bouc, an acquaintance of Poirot and director of the company operating the Orient Express, informs him that Ratchett has been murdered and asks Poirot to investigate, in order to avoid complications and bureaucracy when the Yugoslav police arrive. Poirot accepts. (Release Date: November 22, 2017)

This medieval fantasy series takes place in a far-flung military outpost - the dividing line between the civilized human world and the unknown terrors of the outer savage kingdoms. Dimwood Outpost is a near impenetrable fortress, but the machinations of its corrupt citizens make it a hub for the trade of illicit goods from the wilds, including the mysterious drug colipsum - an emerging epidemic in a kingdom on the verge of invasion by goblin hordes. With monsters on the savage side, and a scourge of plaguelings (zombie-like killers) invading farmlands on the human side, the military leadership has its hands full defending the kingdom, leaving efforts to control rampant crime and drug-trafficking in the hands of an understaffed town watch. A score of centuries has passed since the First Apocalypse and the thoughts of men have turned, inevitably, to more worldly concerns...A veteran sorcerer and spy seeks news of an ancient enemy. A military genius plots to conquer the known world for his Emperor but dreams of the throne for himself. The spiritual leader of the Thousand Temples seeks a Holy War to cleanse the land of the infidel. An exiled barbarian chieftain seeks vengeance against the man who disgraced him. And into this world steps a man like no other, seeking to bind all - man and woman, emperor and slave - to his own mysterious ends. But the fate of men - even great men - means little when the world itself may soon be torn asunder. Behind the politics, beneath the religious fervour, a dark and ancient evil is reawakening. After two thousand years, the No-God is returning. The Second Apocalypse is nigh. And one cannot raise walls against what has been forgotten.

A 1840s-set medical series, about four young pioneers in the daring and wild days of Victorian medicine. The story takes place at a time when medical science as we know it was still in its infancy; when doctors were just as likely to kill their patients as cure them; and when they experimented on themselves and each other. The show explores an era of surgery when the O.R. — or operating theater in British parlance — was full of spectacle and showmanship (and screw-ups). Kinnear will play one of those showmen, an arrogant surgeon; Baynton is in as a fledgling psychiatrist; Basden as a hedonistic dentist turned anesthetist; and Leonard as a headstrong social campaigner.

The politically-charged project centers around a group of journalists who asked the tough questions about Saddam Hussein's alleged WMD's (weapons of mass destruction) which was the way the Bush administration sold the Iraq War to the American public and around the world in 2003. The story follows Knight-Ridder reporters Jonathan Landay and Warren Strobel, who after the events of 9/11, meet with their bureau chief John Walcott to get to the bottom of who was responsible. They find their sources telling them the Bush Administration is trying to tie Saddam Hussein to the terror attacks, even though there is no evidence to support the claim. As the push for war in Iraq increases, they bring in legendary reporter Joe Galloway to give them the high-level sources to help counter the false narrative of Hussein, al-Qaeda and WMDs. They find themselves one of the only media sources running stories countering the prevailing narrative. In the end, Iraq is invaded and their reporting is proven true. While more iconic papers follow the administration line, the smaller-market Knight-Ridder papers try to get beneath the surface and serve the smaller markets where the military bases are, with the reporters believing the military troops in their markets were going to be the most affected by the decision to go to war. It is those troops whose lives would be risked and lost on the battlefield. (October 5 - November 9)

On June 29, 2009, Air National Guard major Mary Jennings "MJ" Hegar was shot down while on a Medevac mission on her third tour in Afghanistan. Despite being wounded, she fought the enemy and saved the lives of her crew and their patients. But soon she would face a new battle: to give women who serve on the front lines the credit they deserve. After being commissioned into the U.S. Air Force, MJ Hegar was selected for pilot training by the Air National Guard, finished at the top of her class, then served three tours in Afghanistan, flying combat search-and-rescue missions, culminating in a harrowing rescue attempt that would earn MJ the Purple Heart as well as the Distinguished Flying Cross with Valor Device. But it was on American soil that Hegar would embark on her greatest challenge—to eliminate the military's Ground Combat Exclusion Policy, which kept female armed service members from officially serving in combat roles despite their long-standing record of doing so with honor.

WRITER: Lindsey Beer DIRECTOR: Ian Samuels CAST: Ben Hardy

Sierra Burgess is smart, intelligent, witty and creative, but not exactly beautiful according to high school standards in Beverly Hills. When she starts texting Jamey, a cute guy who has no idea that she's on the other end, Sierra realizes she'll need the help of queen mean-girl Veronica if she wants any chance of keeping Jamey's interest. The two form an unlikely friendship, but lies can only last so long.

Los Angeles 1983. A storm is coming and its name is cocaine. Snowfall is a one-hour drama set against the infancy of the crack cocaine epidemic and its ultimate radical impact on the culture as we know it. The story follows numerous characters on a violent collision course, including: Franklin Saint (Idris), young street entrepreneur on a quest for power; Gustavo Zapata (Peris-Mencheta), a Mexican wrestler caught up in a power struggle within a crime family; Teddy McDonald (Hudson), a CIA operative running from a dark past who begins an off-book operation to fund the Nicaraguan Contras; and Luica Villanueva (Rios), the self-possessed daughter of a Mexican crime lord.

After a mysterious fall from his Manhattan apartment, Philip Chase has moved home with his mother, Charlene, a bitter woman who has never fully accepted the death of her younger son, Ronnie, five years earlier. Numb from watching too much TV and trading snipes with his mother, Philip is in stasis. But everything changes one winter night when Ronnie's high school girlfriend shows up on their doorstep to deliver the news that she is pregnant ... and the father, she claims, is Ronnie. So begins the startling tale as Philip and his mother confront Melissa's past and their own. Their search for answers takes them on an emotional journey, placing them in the path of murder and revenge.

A young American dancer travels to Europe to join a famous ballet school. As she arrives, the camera turns to another young woman, who appears to be fleeing from the school. She returns to her apartment where she is gruesomely murdered by a hideous creature. Meanwhile, the young American is trying to settle in at the ballet school, but hears strange noises and is troubled by bizarre occurrences. She eventually discovers that the school is merely a front for a much more sinister organization. Remake of the 1977 Dario Argento film.

Based on actual events, the series dramatizes the tragic torrent of violence that followed the disappearance of, and intensive search for, three Israeli teens during the summer of 2014. The show follows an idealistic investigator for the Shin Bet (the Israeli equivalent of the FBI) as he deals with the ramifications of violent reactions on both sides of the escalating conflict. A new command position thrusts him into a confrontation that undermines his faith and worldview, leading to a dramatic conflict between his values and the actions of those closest to him.

Behind any great man, there's always a greater woman ... and you're about to meet her. It is crucial you get to know this woman – many of us already do and don't even realize it. Joan Castleman (Close): a still-striking beauty with impeccable credentials, the perfect alpha wife. Forty years spent sacrificing her own talent, dreams and ambitions to fan the flames of her charismatic husband Joe (Pryce) and his skyrocketing literary career. Ignoring his infidelities and excuses because of his "art" with grace and humor. Their fateful pact has built a marriage upon uneven compromises. And Joan's reached her breaking point. On the eve of Joe's Nobel Prize for Literature, the crown jewel in a spectacular body of work, Joan's coup de grâce is to confront the biggest sacrifice of her life and secret of his career.
