The cat-and-mouse thriller, follows Lewis, a seemingly ordinary guy who under the surface hides a singular obsession – revenge – and the focus of his obsession is Cathy (Reilly). In broad daylight, he kidnaps her and takes her to his home, where he's built a soundproofed cell measuring 10 feet by 10 feet and where he plans to extract a dark secret from her past. But as his motive begins to unravel, it becomes clear that Cathy is a formidable match for her kidnapper.

In the wake of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, Malin, a Russian literature professor at The University of Havana, is separated from his family and job when he's sent to work as a translator between Cuban doctors and children sent from the USSR to receive medical treatment for radiation poisoning. Torn from the abstract world of academia and forced into the relentlessly real world of medicine, Malin must find ways to cope in order to stop his growing depression. When he meets a child who tells him a story, Malin connects with the kids and finds his way through. Just as he begins to adapt to his new job and understand its importance, the Berlin Wall falls and Cuba enters the deepest economic crisis the island has ever known. But Malin is now so entrenched in the lives of the Chernobyl Children that he doesn't notice his young family is suffering. He must find his way back to his wife and young kids through the lessons he learns from the children in the hospital – and become a better person on the way.

Set in a newly-created multicultural Academy in West Yorkshire. The Academy has been formed by the merger of an all-white and an all-Asian school. This bold new series will offer a gritty, funny and truthful insight into the daily drama of the teachers, teenagers and families whose lives and cultures collide in a fictional 21st century Northern town. With the modern British family at its heart, the series will explore its glorious disfunctionality and will provide an authentic account of the very real issues that lie at the heart of its community.

Who protects the protector? US Secret Service agent Mike Banning (Butler) has spent his career keeping American presidents safe. This time, he's the target. If his attackers can take down half of Washington, D.C. with it, all the better. Among those at risk: President Allen Trumbull (Freeman). Behind it all: a ruthless Russian oligarch who's looking to avenge the death of her son. She'll stop at nothing: a home invasion to take out Banning, Leah and their three-year-old daughter Lynne a murderous chase through the streets of D.C. a bomb blast that incinerates Jekyll Island, the President's summer retreat a run for the President's emergency doomsday bunker, Raven Rock Mountain Complex and ultimately blowing Air Force One (code name: "Angel") out of the sky, a first in American history. There's only one way this will end. If Banning wants to live in peace, he's got no choice but to break all the rules and invade Russia. (Production start in the first half of 2017.)

Kate O'Connor is the ruthless CEO of the largest real estate company in New York. With an iron will, she dominates every aspect of the company from its board, to her assistant Dorothy (Joyce) and her driver Peter (Martin). Kate and her boyfriend, corporate lawyer Kent Anderson, are trying to turn a low-income neighborhood into luxury condos, when they run into a problem: Derrick Wilson (Sorbo), a former hockey star who now runs the homeless mission in the neighborhood with his brother Brian and adopted son Emmett. Derrick is intent on saving the mission from Kate and Kent's corporate greed so that the many homeless people who depend on the mission for food and shelter – including the elderly Salome – can have a proper Christmas, confident that he can find the good in Kate through kindness and compassion. When Kate buys the mission's mortgage and tries to evict Derrick and his family, Derrick sells his only prized possession – his championship hockey ring – to pay the outstanding debt.

Described as an espionage thriller with a metaphysical twist, Counterpart tells the story of Howard Silk (Simmons), a lowly cog in a bureaucratic UN agency who is turning the last corner of a life filled with regret, when he discovers the agency he works for is guarding a secret: a crossing to a parallel dimension. Through Howard and his "Counterpart" on the other side, Prime, the show will navigate themes of identity, idealism, what ifs, and lost love. Nyqvist will play Chekhov, the hardened Director of Operations at Howard's agency and a strange mix of philosopher and spy. Boniadi will play Clare, an enigmatic young woman of curious origin, who becomes a major linchpin as the season develops. Pinnock will play Ian Shaw, an aggressive operative and watchdog whose job is to ensure an uneasy peace between both dimensions. Serraiocco will play Baldwin, a mysterious assassin whose life takes on a new purpose when she is exposed to the other side.

THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY 375 Greenwich St., 3rd Fl., New York, NY 10013 212-941-3800 hr.jobs@weinstein.com

Based on the true story of the race between Thomas Edison (Cumberbatch) and George Westinghouse (Shannon) to develop a practical system of electricity and sell their respective inventions to the country and the world. The film will follow the events known as the "War of Currents," which took place in the late 1880's between Edison, who backed his direct current for electrical distribution, and Westinghouse who promoted alternating current. The rivalry got so intense that Edison launched a smear campaign against Westinghouse in an attempt to highlight the safety issues with alternating current. Edison lobbied against AC in state legislatures, spread disinformation on "fatal AC accidents," and even went so far as to publicly execute animals through electrocution. Edison's efforts were naught however, as alternating current prevailed as the superior and cost-effective system, yet his demonstrations led to the invention of the electric chair and his direct current is still used in nearly all modern electronic devices today.

Follows the political machinations behind the scenes during the reign of Queen Anne, the last monarch of the House of Stuarts. The story takes place between the end of the 17th century and first years of the 18th century, when Anne reigned from 1702-1707. Colman, will play Queen Anne. Weisz's character would be Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, the Queen's close confidante; and Stone is lining up to play Abigail Masham, an impoverished, distant relative of Sarah, who gains a position at court tending to the Queen. The story follows the shifting balance of power between the lead characters as they jockey for influence.

Bartholomew Henry "Barry" Allen (Miller) is a police scientist who has a reputation for being very slow, deliberate, and frequently late, which frustrated his fiancée, Iris West. One night, as he was preparing to leave work, a lightning bolt shattered a case full of chemicals and spilled them all over Allen. As a result, Allen found that he could run extremely fast and had matching reflexes. He donned a set of red tights sporting a lightning bolt (reminiscent of the original), dubbed himself the Flash (after his childhood hero, Jay Garrick), and became a crimefighter active in Central City. In his civilian identity, he stores the costume compressed in a special ring via the use of a special gas that could compress cloth fibers to a very small fraction of their normal size.

The spinoff will pick up one year after the events of the final episode of The Good Wife, with Baranski and Quinn reprising their roles as Diane Lockhart and Lucca Quinn. The series will center around an enormous financial scam that has destroyed the reputation of a young lawyer, while simultaneously wiping out her mentor Diane Lockhart's savings. Forced out of Lockhart & Lee, they join Lucca Quinn at one of Chicago's preeminent law firms.

Doug Olsen was oblivious to the signs his marriage was in trouble until his wife Barbara has an affair with an NFL legend that he idolizes. When Barbara declares they need to take a "temporary break" from their marriage, Doug is thrown helplessly into the single world. When Doug meets Amy, the hottest, most exciting girl he'd ever met which causes him to feel unleashed and inspired. The only caveat is that she's 22 years old. And Doug is certainly not. At the same time, his wife Barbara has also thrown herself into the single world and has realized a lot has changed since the last time she was there. She finds herself mustering up the courage to do things she never would in order to find out who she is and whether this marriage is worth holding on to. This is a provocative, unpredictable character comedy where each character journeys to answer the age-old question...Is the grass really greener?

January 1946: London is emerging from the shadow of the Second World War, and writer Juliet Ashton is looking for her next book subject. Who could imagine that she would find it in a letter from a man she's never met, a native of the island of Guernsey, who has come across her name written inside a book by Charles Lamb. As Juliet and her new correspondent exchange letters, Juliet is drawn into the world of this man and his friends—and what a wonderfully eccentric world it is. The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society—born as a spur-of-the-moment alibi when its members were discovered breaking curfew by the Germans occupying their island—boasts a charming, funny, deeply human cast of characters, from pig farmers to phrenologists, literature lovers all. Juliet begins a remarkable correspondence with the society's members, learning about their island, their taste in books, and the impact the recent German occupation has had on their lives. Captivated by their stories, she sets sail for Guernsey, and what she finds will change her forever.

In the bowels of Brooklyn resides Nick Sax; the lowest of the low, a complete jerk with no reason to live but who cannot seem to die. The days of being a well-respected detective all but forgotten, Sax now makes a living (if you could call it that) by killing people for cash. His latest victim, an accident really, draws the attention of the most dangerous man in New York who sends the entire crooked police force after Nick. Rushing to his aid is Happy, a small horse with wings. That's right - an imaginary, blue, unicorn-horned flying donkey that talks. He's got a mission for Nick - one that might convince him to get his life together. (January 30 - February 16)

Set in the present day, the series follows the trials and tribulations of dealing with the social order in high school. A new set of popular-yet-evil Heathers emerges -- only this time the outcasts have become high school royalty. The series centers on the modern day drama at Westerburg High School, where a new social order has taken hold. Like the film, the pilot features a set of uber popular Heathers, only this time, the outcasts have become the royalty. Heather McNamara is a black lesbian -- Heather Duke is a male who identifies as gender-queer whose real name is Heath -- and the leader, Heather Chandler has a body like Martha Dumptruck only she's fabulous, tattooed, has red hair and has 245k Instagram followers. Veronica Sawyer (Cox) is the fourth popular girl in the Heathers' clique, but she's a relatively good person and is getting very tired of doing Heather Chandler's bidding. Veronica used to be best friends with nerdy Asian girl Betty Finn, who now hates all the Heathers but plays fake nice.

The family drama focuses on a contemporary multi-racial family: a philosophy professor, his lawyer wife, their three adopted children from Somalia, Vietnam and Colombia, and their sole biological child. This seemingly perfect, progressive family is in actuality harboring deep rifts. Then, one of the children begins to see things others cannot. Is it mental illness? Or something else? The series is a tragicomic meditation on the complicated forces at work on us all in America today.

The many contentious and self-serving wives of country music icon Eddie Ray Banks come together after his unexpected death at his comeback concert, to decide what to do with his legacy, which amounts to a half finished McMansion, a theater, and a lot of debt. As the women decide, with varying degrees of enthusiasm, to put on a tribute concert featuring an Eddie Ray Banks impersonator, they're stunned by the news that Eddie Banks did not die a natural death: he was poisoned, and most likely by one of them. Seymour will play Lorna Larson Banks, Eddie's gorgeous, tough-as-nails and force-to-be-reckoned-with first wife who parlayed her early career success as a duo with Eddie into a huge solo career that eventually matched or even eclipsed her former husband's. Now one of the most famous women in country music, Lorna has her own successful theater in Branson and is slightly out of touch with reality as a result of being in the public eye for so long. She and Eddie have one daughter together, April, but Lorna hasn't spoken to her since April published a salacious tell-all memoir.

The dramatic account of a small band of Special Forces soldiers who secretly entered Afghanistan following 9/11 and rode to war on horses against the Taliban. Outnumbered forty to one, they pursued the enemy across mountainous terrain and, after a series of intense battles, captured the city of Mazar-i-Sharif, which was strategically essential if they were to defeat the Taliban. The bone-weary American soldiers were welcomed as liberators, and overjoyed Afghans thronged the streets. Then the action took a wholly unexpected turn. During a surrender of six hundred Taliban troops, the Horse Soldiers were ambushed. Dangerously outnumbered, they fought for their lives in the city's immense fortress, Qala-i-Janghi, or the House of War. At risk were the military gains of the entire campaign: if the soldiers perished or were captured, the effort to defeat the Taliban might be doomed.

The story of gunfighter Billy the Kid leading up to his killing by Sheriff Pat Garrett. The tale is told through the eyes of a young boy who is torn between his admiration of the gunfighter legend and his need to save his family. The boy's uncle has murdered his father and when he catches up to the boy and his sister, the uncle turns her out as a prostitute. The enraged boy tracks down Billy the Kid, hoping his hero will get his sister back. The boy finds his romantic notion of the gunfighter is false and that Billy is an uncaring and selfish adolescent. And then the youth discovers true heroism in Sheriff Pat, who, after gunning down the outlaw, takes on the challenge of reuniting the boy with his sister.

Mid 90s Los Angeles is a cesspit of crime, poverty, and racism. It's also home to one of modern history's most infamous unsolved murders: the drive-by shooting of The Notorious B.I.G. which came just months after the gangland execution of his great rival Tupac Shakur. The LAPD – tasked to bring this crumbling city to order – can only add fire to the flames as corruption eats at its core. Black cops die at the hands of their white colleagues, LA's finest are implicated in robberies and drug deals, and dubious officers moonlight for infamous gangsta rap label Death Row Records. The chiefs will do anything to avoid negative publicity, even if it means turning a blind eye to the truth. Two decades on from the murder, Jackson, a less than scrupulous journalist whose entire career is based around one award-winning and flawed investigation into the shooting, and Poole, a disgraced former cop who just can't let the case drop, come together as reluctant partners to navigate the web of corruption once more. Labyrinth is the compelling story of two broken men and their mutual hunt for the truth. As the pair delve deeper into the mire of scandal and deception, this powder-keg tale systematically unravels the reputation of the city's law enforcement, politics and justice system, while introducing us to a new kind of hero. Here is the astonishing true story of Ruth Harkness (Ferguson), the Manhattan bohemian socialite who, against all but impossible odds, trekked to Tibet in 1936 to capture the most mysterious animal of the day: a bear that had for countless centuries lived in secret in the labyrinth of lonely cold mountains. In The Lady and the Panda, Vicki Constantine Croke gives us the remarkable account of Ruth Harkness and her extraordinary journey, and restores Harkness to her rightful place along with Sacajawea, Nellie Bly, and Amelia Earhart as one of the great woman adventurers of all time. Ruth was the toast of 1930s New York, a dress designer newly married to a wealthy adventurer, Bill Harkness. Just weeks after their wedding, however, Bill decamped for China in hopes of becoming the first Westerner to capture a giant panda—an expedition on which many had embarked and failed miserably. Bill was also to fail in his quest, dying horribly alone in China and leaving his widow heartbroken and adrift. And so Ruth made the fateful decision to adopt her husband's dream as her own and set off on the adventure of a lifetime.

This is the true story of William Pitsenbarger, a war hero of the highest order, an Air Force medic who personally saved over 60 men, before being killed in the bloodiest battle of the Vietnam War. Given the chance to escape on the last helicopter out of the battlefield, Pitsenbarger remained to save and defend all those soldiers who were left, but was eventually killed by an enemy bullet, sacrificing his own life for his comrades. For his heroic deeds, Pitsenbarger was awarded the highest military honor a soldier could get, the Congressional Medal of Honor. This medal is awarded for personal acts of valor, above and beyond, the call of duty. But before Pitsenbarger was given the medal, it was taken away from him for unknown, but seemingly political reasons. The Last Full Measure is the touching story of Pitsenbarger's father who together with all survivors of the Vietnam battle petitioned the government to give this fallen war hero the medal he so well deserved. Investigator Scott Huffman is assigned to the case to investigate the reason for this grave injustice. During his research, Scott begins to discover the private and political reasons why certain corrupt politicians denied Pitsenbarger's medal. Scott personally visits a number of the survivors of that terrible battle, all of whom unite for a march on Washington to give back to William Pitsenbarger the honor that has been so ingloriously taken from him. Driven by their conviction, Huffman and Pitsenbarger's friends and family reclaim his well deserved award in an emotional outpouring that honored this truly great man. To this day, he remains only of 1 of 2 enlisted airmen to ever receive such an honor.

In post-war Bristol, neophyte journalist Stephen Underwood is keen to prove his worth in a society where everyone is taught to know his or her place and not to question authority. He works for a local newspaper and yearns to break a big story while his editor, Frank Hamilton, is happy to keep him reporting on nothing more controversial than local community events. However, when Stephen stumbles across the suicide of a Polish soldier from the local Displace Persons' camp, he disregards Hamilton's objections and follows his instincts. Stephen heads to the camp to question the commanding officer, his estranged brother, Captain John Underwood, but John is far from happy to see him and is reluctant to answer any questions. Stephen meets Colonel Janusz Pietrowski, formerly of the Polish Second Corps (under British command) and now a Liaison Officer for the resettlement of Polish troops. When Stephen mentions the suicide, Pietrowski explains that many Poles had lost all hope since their homeland was occupied by Soviet Russia and many fear for their lives but Stephen remains skeptical. Stephen is also intimately involved with Jeanette Mitchell, a Junior Commander in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, who works under his brother at the DP camp. She is trapped in a marriage of convenience with a homosexual military intelligence officer, Mason Mitchell. Both Stephen and Jeanette dream of escaping to London and starting a new life together and in the course of a clandestine meeting in a local public house, Stephen witnesses a confrontation between a new arrival at the camp, Michael Loboda, and a local farmer. During the argument Loboda inadvertently claims he is Russian and not Polish.

Set against the glamorous backdrop of Britain's Roaring '20s, The Laureate tells the story of young British War Poet Robert Graves, who is married with four children when he meets and becomes involved with Laura Riding, a beautiful writer from America studying at Oxford University. Defying the conventions of polite society, Riding soon moves in with Graves and his wife, living as a ménage a trois. Then, with the arrival of the strappingly handsome Irish poet Geoffrey Phibbs, the arrangement becomes a ménage a quatre. Soon, tensions and rivalries among the artistic group become so fraught that Graves is suspected of attempted murder. Tired of the Victorian morals and British social structure that led to his war trauma, as well as the inhibitions imposed on his writing, Graves leaves England for good and settles with Riding on the Spanish island of Mallorca. Before he leaves England, Graves publishes his famous war memoirs "Goodbye To All That" as well as his first successful volume of poems (which critics universally agree contains some of the finest love poetry of the 20th century). Thus, despite the deep wounds of war and being shackled by those around him, Robert transforms himself into "A Laureate."

A gripping narrative that spans five decades, The Looming Tower explains in unprecedented detail the growth of Islamic fundamentalism, the rise of al-Qaeda, and the intelligence failures that culminated in the attacks on the World Trade Center. It re-creates firsthand the transformation of Osama bin Laden and Ayman al-Zawahiri from incompetent and idealistic soldiers in Afghanistan to leaders of the most successful terrorist group in history. He follows FBI counterterrorism chief John O'Neill as he uncovers the emerging danger from al-Qaeda in the 1990s and struggles to track this new threat. Packed with new information and a deep historical perspective, The Looming Tower is the definitive history of the long road to September 11.

Lifelong friends Charlie and Francis spend their days doing what most lifelong friends do - commenting on, critiquing and dismantling the post modern world they live in. From the safe confines of the bike shop at which they work, their days are spent rattling off "self evident" truths about the British, academia, dunk tank clowns, relationship gurus and all of the archetypes in between. Their dynamic is upended when Charlie has a chance encounter with Chloe, an alluring freelance photographer capable of carving up his idiosyncrasies and beliefs with razor sharp precision...and a little help from Jerry Lewis. As the two navigate the land mines of past, present and future relationships, Chloe begins to teach Charlie that the things he holds close to his chest and dear to his heart might, ironically, not be so close and dear as he thought.

In Mr. Cranky, when a gangland war erupts thanks to crime boss Kevin Darcy's short temper, his ex-girlfriend becomes the victim of a car bomb intended for him, and he finds himself saddled with her seven-year-old daughter. More used to putting people to sleep with his fists than bed time stories, it would seem Kevin has finally met his match in the precocious Angela who's quick to enforce her own rules on clean language. Against the odds whilst lying low on the glitzy Gold Coast, the unlikely pair soon form a bond to rival any father daughter relationship, with a little help from Candy, an under-qualified nanny. However, trouble has a way of finding Kevin and it's not long until he's being pursued by a drug-dealing circus clown, Lebanese hitmen, a gang of Hells Angels and the long arm of the law, all the while becoming a better father and a better man.

While at a Harlem jazz club with her sister Belita, Odessa meets a handsome young man named Ernest. Their relationship grows; they marry and raise their two sons, Leonard and Michael in an upstanding neighborhood in the Bronx. When her husband Ernest is killed by a drunken driver Odessa needs to hold down two jobs to support her sons. Since she is never at home, her son Leonard gets involved with a group of protestors who supposedly rally for peace. Michael adores his older brother Leonard and wants to go with him on his marches. Leonard refuses Michael because he's not strong enough to get involved. During a sit-in a shot rings out and an officer goes down. Against Leonard's wishes, Michael sneaks around the bend, sees what is going down and runs to his brother to save him. As he is running toward him, Michael is shot in the back and flies into Leonard's arms dead. Thinking that Leonard was the shooter, the officers descend upon him and take him into custody. The trial lasted only 3 days. Leonard is found guilty of killing a white police officer and is sent to prison for life. Odessa sits behind him in the courtroom comatose. It takes ten years to pass by for Odessa to wake out of her deep depression and mourning. A job opens up to be a live in nanny at the Spinelli household in Upstate New York. At the urging of her sister Belita, Odessa accepts the job.

The story of a beautiful teenager called Jim who arrives in Soho from the north of England. There he befriends a coterie of male escorts known as 'The Raconteurs', whose unique selling point is their encyclopedic knowledge of the arts. The film follows Jim's giddy ascent from novice to sought-after escort and artist's muse – a journey complicated by a rare psychosomatic condition called 'Stendhal Syndrome', which renders Jim painfully oversensitive to art. Jim's encounters with paintings by such artists as Caravaggio cause panic attacks and eventually hallucinations. While this condition opens up new opportunities, it also, when Jim encounters the seedy world of art forgery, threatens to bring about his downfall.

The story follows Laurel & Hardy as they set out on a variety hall tour of Britain in 1953. Diminished by age and with their golden era as the kings of Hollywood comedy now behind them, they face an uncertain future. As they set out, crisscrossing the country, attendances are disappointingly low. But they've always been able to make each other laugh and as the charm and beauty of their performances shines through their audiences laugh too, and they re-connect with legions of adoring fans. The tour becomes a hit, but Laurel & Hardy can't quite shake the spectre of their own past. Long-buried ghosts, coupled with Oliver's failing health, start to threaten their precious partnership. A portrait of the most tender and poignant of creative marriages begins to unfold as the duo, aware that they may be approaching their swan song, try to rediscover just how much they mean to each other.

Alan is in the lounge of a B&B in the Peak District. There's a tottering pile of board games in the corner. The 'Stranger' is a middle aged man called Arthur who is there with his wife Margaret. Alan catches the scent of weakness and insecurity in Arthur's jovial pedantry. Within moments he has manipulated his fellow guests into playing – and betting money – on a game of Scrabble. Alan gives the impression he barely knows how to play the game and hasn't played it for years. Poor Arthur has been hustled. And they're not just playing for money; as far as Alan and his superstitious beliefs are concerned, they are playing for their sons' lives.

An ensemble romantic comedy revolving around a police officer who finds out that her late police chief husband was corrupt to the bone, a discovery that unleashes a farcical chain of events. Haenel co-stars as Yvonne, a police officer on French Riviera who discovers her dead husband Santi led a double life after a criminal she is interrogating recognizes her wedding ring as the loot from a jewelry heist he helped stage. The discovery sends her life into a tail-spin. Her late husband was hailed as a hero by his colleagues and their young son after he died in the line of duty. She grapples with whether she should come clean about her husband's true persona. Close colleague Louis advises her to keep quiet. Alongside Yvonne's dilemma, Marmai plays the innocent Antoine who has recently been released from jail after spending eight years behind bars due to Santi's corruption. Although supported by a loving wife, played by Tautou, he is struggling to adjust back into life and swallow the injustice of what happened to him. Yvonne's attempts to help Antoine soon get her into hot water.

Kit has no idea what she wants to do with her life so she gets a job at a lame PR firm to kill time while she figures things out. Kit has always been a weirdo. She's never had a boyfriend, never even been out on a date. I mean, she spends the majority of her time talking to her stuffed bears. Then Kit gets a special glitter-coated invite to a secret store. Curious, she goes there and meets The Salesman, a goofy guy who's very serious about one thing: Unicorns. It turns out, according to The Salesman, that they're getting a new unicorn in and that Kit has been chosen to receive said unicorn should she meet the basic requirements of unicorn ownage. Thrilled, Kit starts building a stable for her unicorn in her parents' back yard, but realizes she needs help. She hires a guy with a dorky name (Virgil) on Craig's List in hopes that he'll be a nerd and therefore won't judge her. But Virgil turns out to be a total stud, throwing Kit's confused never-had-a-man-before's hormones into overdrive. Of course, she knows that Virgil would never go for a girl like her, so focuses on friendship instead. Kit decides to tell Virgil that she's getting a pony to avoid judgment, but it doesn't take long for Virgil to sense he's not getting the whole story. He finally demands to know what's going on, and Kit believes the best course of action is to show him. So she takes him to the Unicorn Store only for there to not be a Unicorn Store. Just an empty warehouse. Kit must confront the reality that she's so messed up, she imagined the whole thing, and now she's going to lose her best friend over it. But maybe, just maybe, there's still hope for a unicorn arrival yet. (October 31 - December 9)

Raffy is a major movie star; his buddy Evan is a failed actor and a failed screenwriter, but hopes to give both his careers a major bounce by collaborating on a zombie script with the very bankable Raffy. They get together on Halloween night at Raffy's house in the Hollywood Hills, planning to get the script finished by pulling an all-nighter. Then things start getting out of control. They accidentally kill Raffy's neighbor (who is a huge celebrity), whom they wrongly thought was an intruder. Raffy's angry girlfriend Jazz shows up, intent on getting Raffy to show her a little respect (at gunpoint). And Officer Duane, an inquisitive local cop, drops by and finds the recently-murdered body. In addition to working on their script, Raffy and Evan now have something else to work on: their survival.

Chronicles Lou Pearlman's transition from a businessman in the blimp industry to starting a new enterprise in Orlando in which he ended up putting together new musical talent, some of whom achieved international fame. Eventually, his rising success combined with his fraudulent business practices landed him in prison with a 25-year sentence. The judge offered to "reduce his sentence by one month for every million he paid back," but Pearlman died before the end of his sentence.

Dell (Hart) is a middle aged black man struggling to pay his rent in New York City. He has a chance meeting with a quadriplegic man named Phillip (Cranston) and his assistant, Yvonne. Phillip takes a liking to him, and insists that Yvonne call him to interview for a job as his new driver and primary caregiver. Yvonne is shocked, but does as she is told. Dell shows up for the interview with a very poor resume, and is clearly the least qualified of all candidates, but manages to land the job after being selected by Phillip based on gut instinct. Phillip lives in a Park Avenue penthouse, his fabulous wealth a far cry from Dell's underprivileged background. Dell gleefully moves in with Phillip, especially enamored with his garage full of luxury cars. Phillip and Dell quickly develop a powerful friendship. Dell brings a missing element of fun and free spirit into Phillip's life, and Phillip introduces Dell to high art such as painting and the opera. After initial resistance, Dell embraces these arts, and begins painting on his own. He finds out that Phillip has been exchanging love letters with a mysterious woman named Lily, who he has never met in person. Dell forces Phillip to call her and leave a voicemail, but she does not respond. Dell begins to notice that Yvonne might have an attraction to Phillip. (January 16 - March 17)

A gritty and grounded thriller about the origins of a modern day vigilante. Affleck stars as a man who loses everything after a home invasion leaves his family dead and two bullets lodged in his head. Miraculously, he survives and develops a unique power to see into people's past, present and future. With this gift, he goes on a mission of revenge to find the men who killed his family and in the process clean up his city long overdue for justice. But as his vigilante acts become more frequent and violent in nature, his arrival as the city's much-needed hero may be the announcement of its most prolific villain.

Plagued by the abuse of her past and the turmoil of failed intimate encounters, Laura struggles to find a lover and a sense of normalcy. Her beacon of hope comes in sixteen year-old Eva, a talented pianist disillusioned by the life her mother imposes upon her. An unlikely relationship is formed between the two and Eva becomes an obsession to Laura. In light of Eva's unhappiness, Laura convinces her to runaway to her house and they soon find themselves caught within an intense entanglement. Manipulation, denial and codependency fuel what ultimately becomes a fractured dynamic that can only sustain itself for so long.
